In February of 2026 we purchased https://tradely.dev and launched our discord server. Our goal was to make the stock market easier for newbies to get into and more enjoyable for the veterans. We launched multiple projects. Of these the one you are most familiar with is TradeRange. At the time it was launched the platform was known as gamely and was available at gamely.tradely.dev, which now takes you here, to traderange.net. The project has grown beyond just mini-games - offering AI features, backtesting and market analysis. We are proud to say that without TradeRange Tradely simply wouldn't exist.

What does version 5 bring?

Version 5 is the formal announcement of the completion of a number of key landmark points for us.

- Moving to a bold, colourful BAUHAUS style that makes it way easier to get stuck in for newbies and veterans alike!
- Shift of hosting infrastructure to Hetzner to improve uptime and reduce costs making sure TradeRange stays online during heavy demand.
- Addition of AI features across the platform where they offer genuine contribution, such as AI News

Briefs, Crosswords and Article Fact Checks.

- Completion of the ETF Backtester V1, which offers you the chance to build your own ETF and see how it would have performed.

Thank you to the team.

We'd like to thank those that made this platform as great as it is. Overall the team at TradeRange has a wide variety of skills that come together to make us an absolute powerhouse! They have spent months of their life making sure the site stays running and features work. Something that sounds so simple, yet becomes so complicated so quickly.

The future

We will continue trying our best to keep TradeRange going! Currently, we are considering how the expenditures of the platform can be reduced by introducing limited, non intrusive ads. This is a work in progress. We want to keep TradeRange free, but this is potentially a necessary step to guarantee its future. We are avoiding considering paywalling features, because we don't want to become what we set out to change. Through current discussion within the community and dev team this seems like the most reasonable feature.
